ASSASSINATED.

Premier Canovas, of Spain. Shot Down by an Anarchist.

FELL AT HIS WIFE'S FEET.

The Crime Committed at Santa Agueda, Where He Sought Health.

"LONG LIVE SPAIN" HIS LAST WORDS.

Madrid, Aug. 9.—Senor Canovas del Castillo, Prime Minister of Spain, was assassinated yesterday at Santa Agueda by an anarchist. The murderer fired three shots, one of which struck the Premier in the forehead and another in the chest.

The wounded man fell dying at the feet of his wife, who was with him. He lingered for two hours and then passed away with the cry of "Long live Spain," which were his last words upon his lips. He died at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

At the moment of the assassination he was waiting in the gallery of the bathing establishment for his wife, who was to join him for lunch. Suddenly the assassin, who had the appearance of an ordinary visitor, approached and fired at him point blank, one bullet passing through the body and coming out behind, under the left shoulder, and the other two striking in the head.

The assassin narrowly escaped lynching at the hands of the waiters and attendants who rushed forward. Detectives and civil guards immediately secured him. He was very pale, trembled violently and evidently feared that he would be killed on the spot. He will be first arraigned before the local magistrates at Valencia.

It was at first rumored that the assassin was one of the pardoned Barcelona anarchists, but this is not confirmed. The murderer declares that he killed Senor Canovas "in accomplishment of a just vengeance," and that he is a member of a vast anarchist conspiracy. He is believed to have arrived at Santa Agueda the same day as the Premier, and he was frequently seen lurking in the passages of the bathing establishment in suspicious manner.

Later developments prove that the assassination of Senor Canovas was a premeditated murder. The police think it was the work of a great plot by the anarchists.

IN DURANCE VILE.

The Pen Opens Up Its Doors to Receive Young Ella Ray.

HELD OVER THIS MORNING.

Charged With Stealing a $20 Bill From Motorman Oscar Fliske.

DID NOT MAKE A DENIAL.

Moll Edwards, who was indirectly the cause of Ben Ladd's murder near Brooklyn over a year ago, and whose paramour, town marshal Phil Linn, was sent to the penitentiary for fourteen years, was in the police court this morning charged with engaging in a fight with Ella Ray.

The latter was also a conspicuous figure in the prisoners' dock, being charged with stealing $20 from Oscar Fliske, a motorman on the People's Street Railway, one day last week.

Both women live in the notorious "Tin Can Alley," the proper name for which is Boyd's alley, and belong to the same gang that the police had been run out of town.

The Edwards woman had a very black eye this morning. She pleaded not guilty, saying she was endeavoring to put the Ray woman out when she was assaulted. The Ray woman corroborated her, taking to herself all blame and responsibility. The Edwards woman was discharged.

The grand jury case against the Ray woman was then called. Motorman Fliske swore that he went to the woman's house intoxicated, and went to sleep on the bed. He did not see the Ray woman, but when he awoke a $20 bill had been stolen from his pocket.

Mr. Temple, owner, who is employed at an installment house on South Third, testified that the woman paid him a $20 bill for some goods, but he could not identify the money.

Tom Blackburn, an employee, however, did identify the bill, having taken it out to secure change. It had real marks on it, and this answered the description Fliske gave of it.

The Ray woman declined to testify, and was held to answer, her bond being fixed at $300. In default of it she went to jail.

The prisoner is a fairly good-looking young woman, and about as degraded as they make them.

MONDAY, AUGUST 9, 1897.

As a rule we don't agree with Eugene V. Debs in his statement. But however well he may be in some of his views, he is at other times strictly orthodox. We cannot refrain from giving prominence to the following bit of sound advice which he gave the striking miners at Wilkesburg, Pa., last week: "In order to win you must remain absolutely sober. Whisky clouds the brain, robs you of your money, and makes you brutal, and also makes you do just what your enemies want you to do."

We have had no answer as yet to the proposition put by "Inquisitive" in a late issue of the Sun, when he wanted to know why if the price were the same the Mayor did not take 500 roll calls instead of 200. It is probable, however, that the city did not have storage room enough for the additional 300 or that the labor of looking after 300 more would be too much for the already overtaxed energies of the efficient city clerk. And then it may be that the Mayor thought the city could not survive after the next November election and would go out of business. If any of our readers have any suggestions to make in this matter they will be gladly heard.

Any deficit that may appear in the national treasury during the first few months of the operation of the new tariff will not be unexpected by the framers of that measure. Anticipating higher tariff schedules the importers have been rushing foreign goods to the United States for several months so that now many lines are greatly overstocked. This will, of course, operate to impede the resumption of many factories until this large surplus is worked off. This action of the importers but emphasizes the evils of free trade. It will not take long to use up the imported stocks and then the American factories will have their turn and the American laborer will be freed, for a term of years at least, from the blight of free trade with its attendants of want, woe and misery. It was found to be no encouragement to the American workingman out of a job, and without money in his pocket, to tell him that shiploads of cheaper goods were coming into the markets of this country. He wanted employment before he could buy. That he will soon get employment under the new order of things is the confident expectation of all friends of the cause of Protection, and the hope even of its honest opponents.

ALMOST A YEAR OLD.
The first anniversary of the DAILY SUN is near at hand. On Sept. 12th the Sun will be one year old. It is the intention of the Sun to issue on that day an anniversary number, though this has not fully been determined upon and the manager may conclude to wait until a little later in the fall.

The success of the Sun has been far beyond the expectations of its founders and we may also add beyond the predictions of its contemporaries. The "campaign sheet" as it was dubbed, is here to stay. It is now recognized by friend and foe as one of Paducah's permanent institutions. Its lease of life is as permanent as that of either of its conferrers in the local journalistic field. Its financial standing is unimpaired and it bears the substantial evidence of having had able financial management in the business office.

While the Sun has been increasing in length of days until it has almost reached the full stature of manhood, it has just as surely been adding daily to its reading clientele and to its advertising patronage. All the slurs cast upon the Sun have counted for naught in the minds of the people of Paducah. The Sun has come to be the family paper of the Plain City. It is full of news and as a disseminator of local news has no equal in this city. This fact the people quickly recognized and it is second to none. Indeed the phenomenal success of the Sun and its great popularity so quickly attained prompt us to the belief, which we think is well founded, that its circulation is without doubt the largest of any daily paper in Paducah. The advertising patronage of the Sun speaks for itself. Paducah's best and shrewdest advertisers make liberal use of its columns and they do so knowing full well the value of the paper and results are proving to them the wisdom of their course.

36.6 TO 1, THE NEW RATIO.
The bullion value of the silver dollar according to the market price of silver during the greater part of last week was just 36.6 cents. This is in accordance with the estimates of Mr. Preston the director of the mint at Washington. This makes the commercial ratio between silver and gold 36.6 to 1 instead of the old time 16 to 1. Mr. Preston an expert in matters financial, gives the following reasons for the fall of silver. He said in a recent interview: "Simply the lack of demand for it. I see no future for silver whatever. Yesterday's market quotation made it 56 cents an ounce. It is my honest opinion that within six months silver will fall to 40 cents an ounce. There is no demand for it anywhere. China is not buying any, Japan is out of the business, and there seems to be no demand for it in any country to any extent, even for use as subsidiary coin. It is true that in the bazaars of India it is traded in as merchandise, but the famine and hard times in that country have reduced the demand to a minimum. The output of gold is steadily increasing. I think that the world's product for this year will be about $240,000,000. The United States will contribute about $60,000,000 to the supply. I base my predictions of an increased world's output upon the fact that the supply has not fallen off in any country."

FINANCE AND THE TARIFF.

Pungent Paragraphs on the Two Issues Uppermost in the Minds of the American People.

Silver is Still Going Down, But Wheat Goes Up.—McKinley's Civil Service Order Strictly in Accordance With the National Republican Platform.

A group of silver statesmen have just left for Japan and China to search for new arguments in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver. It looks like a rather poor time to undertake a task of this sort, when Japan has already gone to the gold standard and China is contemplating the same step.

For a business-like administration, commend us to the Republican party. Only five months have passed since the inauguration of President McKinley, yet he has called congress together, the promised tariff bill has been placed upon the statute books, an international bimetallic commission has secured assurances of an international conference to be held in the United States, and the Secretary of the Treasury is now engaged in shaping up a system which will give the promised revision of the currency, assuring such laws as will keep every dollar of the currency as good as gold. This is in extreme contrast with the conditions under the Democratic administration four years ago, and the prospects before the country now are in equally striking contrast with those which confronted the suffering people in the first year of President Cleveland's administration.

Mr. Bryan's silence, which has created so much surprise of late, is accounted for by the announcement that the leaders of his party have taken him into a woodshed and informed him that while speech may be silver silence is golden, and that he had better go onto the gold platform so far as speech-making is concerned.

Despite the continued fall in the price of silver, western farmers are scrambling for cars with which to transport their grain for which they are getting large prices. The thousands of cars which have been lying idle in car shops and upon the side tracks since 1893 are now one of the things now being pressed into service, and thousands of others are demanded and cannot be had, while the prices for the grain which they are to transport have greatly advanced, while silver has steadily fallen. Of course there is no real significance in these two concurrent events, but Bryan and others would have had us believe last fall that wheat and silver rose and fell together.

Word comes from the states in which active political campaigns are on this fall that the gold Democrats are making rapid inroads in the ranks of the Silverite party, and will carry off thousands upon thousands of men who last year voted the Bryan ticket, but who now see from the developments since that time the folly and unwisdom of the silver cause.

Somebody has expressed anxiety lest Mr. Bryan and his followers should have difficulty in finding something to say in the present campaign. They will have plenty on their hands, however, if they attempt to explain how it is that wheat has gone up 23 cents per bushel since last fall's campaign, while silver has dropped 10 cents an ounce in the same period. It is noticed that silver men are singularly silent on this point.

The wild screams of delight with which the silver people at first greeted the Maryland Democratic platform have materially subsided now that they discover it is practically an endorsement of the Republican position of 1896 since it expresses the greatest pleasure that President McKinley and the Republican Congress have done precisely what the Republican platform promised to do—taken steps to bring about an international conference on the silver question.

The people who supposed that Mr. Bryan is at all embarrassed in his free coinage theories by the fact that the value of silver in a dollar has fallen from 55 cents in the last campaign to 44 cents at the present time, evidently do not understand Mr. Bryan. A man who could have the assurance to urge that the government ought to permit everybody to put 53 cents' worth of silver into a coin and pass it for a dollar can just as well argue in favor of that privilege for 44 or 24 cents' worth of silver.

President Cleveland's order requiring consuls to turn over to the government the fees which they had usually been collecting for their own benefit has been modified by President McKinley in the case of those consuls whose salaries are $2000 per annum or less. The modification does not apply to consuls already receiving salaries above $2000, and hence destroys the value of many columns of able criticism which the Democratic editors of the land had prepared to hurl at the head of President McKinley had he made the order a general one, as they hoped, for political reasons, that he would.

FROZEN IN ALASKA.

Terrible Fate of Three Gold Hunters Who Were Trying to Walk Back Home.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 6.—News has just reached here of the death last April of Charles A. Blackstone, George Botcher and J. W. Malinque, miners who went to Alaska in 1896, and were frozen to death in trying to make their way back to Seattle. They were last seen alive March 27th. Friends of this city who went to Alaska to investigate found Blackstone's body, but no trace of the other two could be found.

The following statement was found on Blackstone's body:

"Saturday, April 4, 1897.—This is to certify that Botcher froze to death on Tuesday night, J. W. Malinque died Wednesday afternoon, being frozen so badly. C. A. Blackstone had his ears, nose and four fingers on his right hand two on his left hand frozen an inch back. The storm drove us on before it. It overtook us within an hour of the summit and drove us before it. It drove everything we had over the cliff except blankets and moose hide, which we all crawled under. Supposed to have been 40 degrees below zero. On Friday I started for salt water. I don't know how I got there without outfit. On Saturday afternoon I gathered up everything. Have enough grub for ten days, providing bad weather does not set in. Sport was blown over the cliff. I think I can hear him howl once in awhile. The bodies of Malinque and Botcher were never found."

Moral—Cast Your Bread Upon the Waters and Wait.

One of San Francisco's capitalists is Joseph Boardman. It is said that he is a millionaire, but to look at him you would not think it. You could hardly say that he dresses shabbily, but he comes very close to it, and appears to a stranger to be some kindly old gentleman who for some reason or other is out of his mind. Boardman's house is over in Oakland, but his office is in San Francisco, and each morning he makes the trip over on the ferry.

The other morning he started for the boat and his house and forgot to take for his pocketbook to his clothes. Of course, he did not discover this until he had reached the wharf. There was no one in the crowd that he knew of that knew him. He searched every pocket in vain. A young man standing near by witnessed the confusion of the old gentleman, and, walking up to him, thrust a coin into his hand and moved back into the crowd.

The young man doubtless supposed that he had done a good deed, and a kindly one, and he hastened away in order to make it less embarrassing for his benefactor. He had no opportunity to get far, however, before Mr. Boardman caught him and made him divulge his name and address.

The next day the young man was the recipient of a large check drawn by the millionaire, and making him richer by $100 than he was the day before.—Washington Times.

"What is that?"

"He is very much afraid of sister Blanche will marry you."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, I heard him tell mamma so. He said he was afraid she'd marry you, even after he had showed you up to her in such fine style, girls were so stubborn and contrary."—N. Y. World.

Speaking about dry goods stores and the different places you purchase your wants, did you mention the name of Eley, Dipple & White in your conversation? If you did not, and do not trade with them, why not? It gives us pleasure to show our goods, notwithstanding you may not purchase, and courteous treatment is extended to all. The following reasons may prove beneficial to some who do not call and see our line of Dry Goods and Notions:

1st. We guarantee our goods to be first-class and our prices to be at lowest figures.

2nd. Our buyer is up to date and studies the wants of the people.

3rd. We pay cash for goods and take all discounts, consequently our goods cost less than same goods would cost merchants who do not take that advantage.

4th. If we sell you goods at prices less than other people in same business it will pay you to trade with us.

5th. We are in business to stay and cannot afford to sell goods at higher prices than our competitors. From that fact, and our desire to live and let live, we mark our goods at the lowest price.

6th. Our motto is quick sales and small profits. In other words we mean to sell two bolts of goods realizing only the profit some receive from one.

If you want to improve your financial condition it will do you no harm to call—our prices and goods will do the rest. Respt.,

TO THE PUBLIC:

MONDAY, AUGUST 9, 1897.

As a rule we don't agree with Eugene V. Debs in his statements. But however wild he may be in some of his views, he is at other times strictly orthodox. We cannot refrain from giving prominence to the following bit of sound advice which he gave the striking miners at Wilkesburg, Pa., last week: "In order to win you must remain absolutely sober. Whisky clouds the brain, robs you of your money, and makes you brutal, and also makes you do just what your enemies want you to do."

We have had no answer as yet to the proposition put by "Inquirer" in a late issue of the Sun, when he wanted to know why if the price were the same the Mayor did not take 500 roll calls instead of 200. It is probable, however, that the city did not have storage room enough for the additional 300 or that the labor of looking after 300 more would be too much for the already overtaxed energies of the efficient city clerk. And then it may be that the Mayor thought the city could not survive after the next November election and would go out of business. If any of our readers have any suggestions to make in this matter they will be gladly heard.

Any deficit that may appear in the national treasury during the first few months of the operation of the new tariff will not be unexpected by the framers of that measure. Anticipating higher tariff schedules the importers have been rushing foreign goods to the United States for several months so that now many lines are greatly overstocked. This will, of course, operate to impede the resumption of many factories until this large surplus is worked off. This action of the importers but emphasizes the evils of free trade. It will not take long to use up the imported stocks and then the American factories will have their turn and the American laborer will be freed, for a term of years at least, from the blight of free trade with its attendants of want, woe and misery. It was found to be no encouragement to the American workman out of a job, and without money in his pocket, to tell him that shiploads of cheaper goods were coming into the markets of this country. He wanted employment before he could buy. Under the new order of things is the confident expectation of all friends of the cause of Protection, and the hope even of its honest opponents.

ALMOST A YEAR OLD.
The first anniversary of the DAILY SUN is near at hand. On Sept. 12th the Sun will be one year old. It is the intention of the Sun to issue on that day an anniversary number, though this has not fully been determined upon and the manager may conclude to wait until a little later in the fall.

The success of the Sun has been far beyond the expectations of its founders and we may also add far beyond the predictions of its contemporaries. The "campaign sheet" as it was dubbed, is here to stay. It is now recognized by friend and foe as one of Paducah's permanent institutions. Its lease of life is as permanent as that of either of its confederates in the local journalistic field. Its financial standing is unimpaired and it bears the substantial evidence of having had able financial management in the business office.

While the Sun has been increasing in length of days until it has almost reached the full stature of manhood, it has just as surely been adding daily to its reading clientele and to its advertising patronage. All the slurs cast upon the Sun have counted for naught in the minds of the people of Paducah. The Sun has come to be the family paper of the Plain City. It is full of news and as a disseminator of local news has no equal in this city. This fact the people quickly recognized and the result is that the circulation of the Sun is second to none. Indeed the phenomenal success of the Sun and its great popularity so quickly attained prompt us to the belief, which we think is well founded, that its circulation is without doubt the largest of any daily paper in Paducah. The advertising patronage of the Sun speaks for itself. Paducah's best and shrewdest advertisers make liberal use of its columns and they do so knowing full well the value of the paper and results are proving to them the wisdom of their course.

36.6 TO 1, THE NEW RATIO.
The bullion value of the silver dollar according to the market price of silver during the greater part of last week was just 35.6 cents. This is in accordance with the estimates of Mr. Preston the director of the mint at Washington. This makes the commercial ratio between silver and gold 36.6 to 1 instead of the old time 16 to 1. Mr. Preston an expert in matters financial, gives the following reasons for the fall of silver. He said in a recent interview: "Simply the lack of demand for it. I see no future for silver whatever. Yesterday's market quotation made it 56 cents an ounce. It is my honest opinion that within six months silver will fall to 40 cents an ounce. There is no demand for it anywhere. China is not buying any, Japan is out of the business, and there seems to be no demand for it in any country to any extent, even for use as subsidiary coin. It is true that in the bazaars of India it is traded in as merchandise, but the famine and hard times in that country have reduced the demand to a minimum. The output of gold is steadily increasing. I think that the world's product for this year will be about $240,000,000. The United States will contribute about $60,000,000 to the supply. I base my predictions of an increased world's output upon the fact that the supply has not fallen off in any country."

"Here comes the Klondike now with still further additions to the gold supply of the world. The extent of the Klondike's output is problematical, depending largely upon climate conditions."

FINANCE AND THE TARIFF.

Pungent Paragraphs on the Two Issues Uppermost in the Minds of the American People.

Silver is Still Going Down, But Wheat Goes Up.—McKinley's Civil Service Order Strictly in Accordance With the National Republican Platform.

A group of silver statesmen have just left for Japan and China to search for new arguments in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver. It looks like a rather poor time to undertake a task of this sort, when Japan has already gone to the gold standard and China is contemplating the same step.

For a business-like administration, commend us to the Republican party. Only five months have passed since the inauguration of President McKinley, yet he has called congress together, the promised tariff bill has been placed upon the statute books, an international bimetallic commission has secured assurances of an international conference to be held in the United States, and the Secretary of the Treasury is now engaged in shaping up a system which will give the promised revision of the currency, assuring such laws as will keep every dollar of the currency as good as gold. This is in extreme contrast with the conditions under the Democratic administration four years ago, and the prospects before the country now are in every striking contrast with those which confronted the suffering people in the first year of President Cleveland's administration.

Mr. Bryan's silence, which has created so much surprise of late, is accounted for by the announcement that the leaders of his party have taken him into a woodshed and informed him that while speech may be silver silence is golden, and that he had better go onto the gold platform so far as speech-making is concerned.

Those nervous people who were alarmed last President McKinley's recent civil service order would prove unpopular are finding that the reverse is true. The order is being very generally commended by the wisest and most patriotic citizens of the country, and is commended by only those who hoped to see faithful men and women removed from positions which they had honestly and conscientiously filled in order to give the places to others. President McKinley evidently supposes that the Republican party and those seven millions of voters who supported it meant what was said by the St. Louis platform, which platform said of the civil service law: "We renew our repeated declarations that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced and extended wherever practicable."

Those Democratic parrots who are reiterating the assertion that a protection tariff is a breeder of trusts seem to have already forgotten that trusts never flourished in this country as they did under the three years of the Democratic tariff, which the people in their might wiped from the face of the statute books by their vote of last November.

Despite the continued fall in the price of silver, western farmers are scrambling for cars with which to transport their grain for which they are getting large prices. The thousands of cars which have been lying idle in car shops and upon the side tracks since 1893 are now one of them now being pressed into service, and thousands of others are demanded and cannot be had, while the prices for the grain which they are to transport have greatly advanced, while silver has steadily fallen. Of course there is no real significance in these two concurrent events, but Bryan and others would have had us believe last fall that wheat and silver rose and fell together.

Word comes from the states in which active political campaigns are on this fall that the gold Democrats are making rapid inroads in the ranks of the Silvercratic party, and will carry off thousands upon thousands of men who last year voted the Bryan ticket, but who now see from the developments since that time the folly and unwisdom of the silver cause.

Somebody has expressed anxiety lest Mr. Bryan and his followers should have difficulty in finding something to say in the present campaign. They will have plenty on their hands, however, if they attempt to explain how it is that wheat has gone up 23 cents per bushel since last fall's campaign, while silver has dropped 10 cents an ounce in the same period. It is noticed that silver men are singularly silent on this point.

The wild screams of delight with which the silver people at first greeted the Maryland Democratic platform have materially subsided now that they discover it is practically an endorsement of the Republican position of 1896 since it expresses the greatest pleasure that President McKinley and the Republican Congress have done precisely what the Republican platform promised to do—taken steps to bring about an international conference on the silver question.

The people who supposed that Mr. Bryan is at all embarrassed in his free coinage theories by the fact that the value of silver in a dollar has fallen from 53 cents in the last campaign to 44 cents at the present time, evidently do not understand Mr. Bryan. A man who could have the assurance to urge that the government ought to permit everybody to put 53 cents' worth of silver into a coin and pass it for a dollar can just as well argue in favor of that privilege for 44 or 24 cents' worth of silver.

President Cleveland's order requiring consuls to turn over to the government the fees which they had usually been collecting for their own benefit has been modified by President McKinley in the case of those consuls whose salaries are $2000 per annum or less. The modification does not apply to consuls already receiving salaries above $2000, and hence destroys the value of many columns of able criticism which the Democratic editors of the land had prepared to hurl at the head of President McKinley had he made the order a general one, as they hoped, for political reasons, that he would.

FROZEN IN ALASKA.

Terrible Fate of Three Gold Hunters Who Were Trying to Walk Back Home.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 6.—News has just reached here that the death last April of Charles A. Blackstone, George Botcher and J. W. Malinque, miners who went to Alaska in 1896, and were frozen to death in trying to make their way back to Seattle. They were last seen alive March 27th. Friends of this city who went to Alaska to investigate found Blackstone's body, but no trace of the other two could be found.

The following statement was found on Blackstone's body: "Saturday, April 4, 1897.—This is to certify that Botcher froze to death Tuesday night. J. W. Malinque died Wednesday afternoon, being frozen so badly. C. A. Blackstone had his ears, nose and four fingers on his right hand two on his left hand frozen an inch back. The storm drove us on before it. It overtook us within an hour of the summit and drove us before it. It drove everything we had over the cliff except blankets and moose hide, which we all crawled under. Supposed to have been 40 degrees below zero. On Friday I started for salt water. I don't know how I got there without outfit. On Saturday afternoon I gathered up everything. Have enough grub for ten days, providing bad weather does not set in. Sport was blown over the cliff. I think I can hear him howl once in awhile."

The bodies of Malinque and Botcher were never found.

Moral—Cast Your Bread Upon the Waters and Wait.

One of San Francisco's capitalists is Joseph Boardman. He is said to be a millionaire, but to look at him you would not think it. You could hardly say that he dresses shabbily, but he comes very close to it, and appears to be a stranger to be so kindly old gentleman whom fortune has never paid to smile upon. Mr. Boardman's house is over in Oakland, but his office is in San Francisco, and each morning he makes the trip over on the ferry.

The other morning he started for the boat, and in his haste he forgot to transfer his pocketbook to his clothes. Of course, he did not discover this until he had reached the wharf. There was no one in the crowd that he knew of that knew him. He searched every pocket in vain. A young man standing near by witnessed the confusion of the old gentleman, and, walking up to him, thrust a coin into his hand and moved back into the crowd.

The young man doubtless supposed that he had done an act of kindness to a needy one, and he hastened away in order to make it less embarrassing for his benefactor. He had no opportunity to get far, however, before Mr. Boardman caught him and made him divulge his name and address. The next day the young man was the recipient of a snug check drawn by the millionaire, and making him richer by $100 than he was the day before.—Washington Times.

One Thing He Feared.

"My papa is an awful brave man," said young Hawker to young Mr. Hunter. "He drove off some burglars night before last."

"I suppose he is not afraid of anything, Tommy," replied Mr. Hunter.

"Yes, I think there is one thing he is afraid of," replied Tommy.

"What is that?"

"He is very much afraid, mister Blanche will marry you."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, I heard him tell mamma so. He said he was afraid she'd marry you, even after he had showed you up to her in such fine style, girls were so stubborn and contrary."—N. Y. World.

A Clew.

First Great Detective—Sh! Sh! I've got a clew to that great murder case.

Second G. D. (highly excited)—Yes? What is it?

"The prisoner has confessed."—N. Y. Journal.

Her Favorite Number.

The prince in the fairy tale proceeded with his glowing description of the home he had prepared for his bride.

"A hundred winking ovens," he exclaimed, "shall greet thy nostrils!"

"Can you make it 99 cents?" suddenly demanded the princess, who was inclined to be advanced a couple of centuries on such a matter, and whose every aspiration was harking forward to a more practical age.—Detroit Journal.

Fish in Deep Water.

A highly original observation upon the behavior of fish in deep water, as remarkable as to deserve special notice, is attributed to a long-experienced captain of a steam-fishing smack. The fishing boats belonging to the southern portions of the North sea found in their catch lately a disproportionately small quantity of codfish.

The captain maintained that he had foreseen this for eight days, he had observed that, just before the fish left the shallow water of the southern banks, they took sand into their stomachs, and soon after fish caught in deeper northern waters showed the same peculiarity. Then, when the time for migrating from the deep waters comes again, the fish dispose of the sand. The theory has been advanced that the sand is taken in as ballast, and is rejected when shallow water is to be returned to. The sand often differs in color and grain from that of the bottom where the fish are found. It is claimed that this sand may supply a guide for the fishermen.—N. Y. Ledger.

Speaking about dry goods stores and the different places you purchase your wants, did you mention the name of Eley, Dipple & White in your conversation? If you did not, and do not trade with them, why not? It gives us pleasure to show our goods, notwithstanding you may not purchase, and courteous treatment is extended to all. The following reasons may prove beneficial to some who do not call and see our line of Dry Goods and Notions:

1st. We guarantee our goods to be first-class and our prices to be at lowest figures.

2nd. Our buyer is up to date and studies the wants of the people.

3rd. We pay cash for goods and take all discounts, consequently our goods cost less than same goods would cost merchants who do not take that advantage.

4th. If we sell you goods at prices less than other people in same business it will pay you to trade with us.

5th. We are in business to stay and cannot afford to sell goods at higher prices than our competitors. From that fact, and our desire to live and let live, we mark our goods at the lowest price.

6th. Our motto is quick sales and small profits. In other words we mean to sell two bolts of goods realizing only the profit some receive from one.

If you want to improve your financial condition it will do you no harm to call—our prices and goods will do the rest. Respect,

WRITTEN AT RANDOM.

"As the train leaving here at 7:50 o'clock in the morning will carry mail after today the 'Register's' circulation will be increased at Calvert City, Grand Rivers, Kuttawa and Eddyville, and the canvassers will visit those points early this week."

The above, from yesterday's "Register," solves the mystery of why it advocated the mail service between Louisville and Fulton. It raised a great kick when the service was abandoned several months ago, and now, by the above, proves that it was actuated in its boasted "defense of the interests of the merchants" by purely selfish motives, and wanted the service simply so its daily repository of fiction could be distributed up the Illinois Central by Uncle Sam's agents. By the way, the "Register" has a large circulation. As the news is circulated up to Central City on one train, and back to Paducah on the other. Great seller, it is!

A new secret order has been added to the already long list. It is called "The Ancient and Exalted Order of the Elephant," and has its foundation in circus and theatrical circles. The initial meeting was held a few days ago at Detroit, Mich., after the progress of a year's careful development. The grand lodge has received a certificate of incorporation from the state of Wisconsin, and charters are to be issued to the "herds," as local orders are to be called. Permanent headquarters have been established at Janesville, Wis., and there are already 400 applications for membership to the parent lodge. The symbol of the order is an elephant, a button to be worn by the members, having on it the figure of an elephant with upraised trunk, the letters A. E. O. E. being subscribed on the blanket.

This order is something similar to the "Owls," whose symbol is an owl; the "Hoo-Hos," whose symbol is a black cat; the "Red Men," "Elks," etc. The local divisions of these orders are known as "nests," "tribes," and by similarly appropriate titles.

"Shooting the chutes" has become very popular in Paducah, especially among the children. In a number of back yards, should one care to investigate, he would find many "shoot-the-chutes" on a small scale, one of the most ingenious of which is that constructed by Master Glenn Smith, the bright little son of Mr. E. W. Smith at Eighth and Madison streets, which is quite a marvel, as well as attraction in the neighborhood. Many episodes in their everyday life can the little folks compare to shooting the chutes. The other day one little miss was sitting on the edge of the bath tub, when she lost her equilibrium and slid down into the yawning depths of soap suds. She crawled out, spluttering and wiping her eyes, but instead of crying, gleefully exclaimed to her mother, who had rushed to the rescue, "Oh, mama! Did you see me shoot the chutes?"

Attorney Hal Corbett was nominated as a Democratic candidate for congress in the district in which he lived while a resident of Missouri, Mont., a year or two ago. Political speakings, with their concomitant difficulties and dissensions are about the same in the far west as they are in Kentucky, and Attorney Corbett, before he could get to congress had to get elected, hence he always had to get elected. On one occasion he made an unusually eloquent speech, concluding with a peroration something like this: "Now, gentlemen, if you want to send me to congress, the honor will be conferred on one who will appreciate and respect it. But gentlemen, I have a beautiful home, a lovely wife and three children to whom I can go if you do not see fit to elect me. Use your own judgment, I beseech you." And the popular lawyer dwelt at some length on the attractiveness of his domestic life, and the beauty of his home.

After he had concluded, a rough, ignorant old fellow stepped up and said: "Looky hyar, we uns ain't hankerin' arter sendin' no man off from such a lovely wife, bootiful home, an' three putty children. Ye've got a darned site more'n any uv the rest uv us, ef ye're tellin' the truth, an' ef ye'll take a fule's advice ye'll sit rite down in that there bootiful home an' stay with them three putty children uv yours."

The lawyer became indignant and told the old scoundrel that he didn't want such people as he to vote for him, at which the reprobate hit him a back-hander and knocked him down.

"What did you do?" inquired a sympathetic friend of the attorney when he was telling it the other day. "What did I do?" echoed the lawyer with a sigh of unmistakable sadness, as he gazed into the heavens above. "Oh, I can see those beautiful stars yet!"

Few people have more loyal, sympathetic hearts than physicians, although a person would be inclined to think otherwise sometimes.

Doctors, as a rule, however, after repeatedly coming in contact with sickness, suffering and sorrow, learn to control their feelings, and although they might appear cold, callous and heartless, they are inwardly as sympathetic and affected as a less experienced person would be.

A rather unusual scene was witnessed a few days ago by quite a number of people on a certain street. A little child lay ill, and every thing possible had been done to save her, but to no avail. Slowly the innocent little life ebbed away, and the potent power of medicine was powerless to prevent it. The two physicians, after exhausting their last remedy, realized that death was inevitable, and turned their backs to the bed on which lay the little sufferer, surrounded by weeping mother and relatives. The doctors had done the best they could, and passed out of the room, through the hall, to the front porch, and sitting on the front steps both shed tears that could not be restrained, and of which they were not ashamed. The picture was very expressive, and neighbors, when they saw the two physicians sitting on the steps crying, realized that grim death was about to invade another happy home.

It happened at a missionary meeting the other day. They had a new secretary, and it happened that she bore the same name that three of four of the other members did.

When the time for the payment of dues arrived—a time that is quite indispensable in church society circles—the new secretary remarked: "Oh, Miss B—I see you haven't paid your dues for several weeks!" "You're mistaken, I have always paid them promptly," retorted Miss B., with ill-concealed resentment. "Beg your pardon, but I'm going by the book," apologized the new secretary, and several crowded around to find out whether Miss B. had really liquidated her obligations to the society or had gone amiss in this very essential duty.

"Why, it's your own name," triumphantly exclaimed Miss B.'s bosom friend to the amazed and humiliated secretary, and so it proved to be.

The surname of the new secretary and Miss B. was the same.

New Company Treads the Boards at LaBelle To-Night.

Manager Phelps Gets in With New People.—Amusement

Notes of Local Interest.

Manager P. A. Phelps and his stock company, nine in number, arrived last night from Nashville on the steamer Butteroff, and are now installed at LaBelle park.

The members of the company are: Misses Bertha Phelps, Eberline Hogan and Ella Reed, Messrs. John Delaney, King Russell, W. C. Malone, J. B. Clark, Verner Phelps and Manager P. A. Phelps. Mrs. Clark accompanied her husband, but is not in the troupe.

The company opens tonight at LaBelle park in John A. Stevens' celebrated "Unknown," a play that has never yet been produced in Paducah by any company, and is first-class and a sure winner.

Manager Phelps stated last night that he would present no play that has ever been seen in Paducah, during his engagement here. His repertoire includes plays that have never been produced even in Kentucky, and the company will no doubt make a great success here.

Manager Phelps will play his people wherever, in his opinion, they can do best. He and Miss Hogan will appear in the leads, but the others will have no particular place in the cast. The bill for the latter part of the week will be announced later.

The vitascope, at LaBelle Park Theater, drew two large crowds yesterday, both afternoon and night. The crowd last night was particularly large, which was quite a pleasant surprise to the management, considering the fact that it was Sunday night.

The Agnes Carlton-Phillips Company left at noon yesterday for Murphysboro, Ill., where it tonight begins a week's engagement. Mr. Mosely, formerly of Mabel Paige, is in advance.

The Dawson Stock Company opened at Casino Saturday night in a double bill, and while the patronage was not extraordinary, the company made quite a hit, especially Mrs. Bourne and Little Hazel. The troupe will present tonight "Rough Diamond," Tuesday, "Lady Audley," and Wednesday "East Lynne."

PIED THE TYPE

And Poured the Whole Print-Shop Into the Ink Barrel.

High-Handed Vandalism at Cairo, Ill.—Printers Are Suspected.

as One Had Made Threats.

Friday at Cairo several miscreants practically destroyed the printing office of Sol Farnbaker, who is proprietor of the Evening "People's" office.

Several strange types who had been working in the office are suspected of the vandalism. The fact that they have not been seen since the mischief was done strengthens the theory.

They had some differences with Mr. Farnbaker over wages they claimed due them, and one of them had been heard to make threats that he would get even with the office if he was not paid satisfactorily. This job was done by printers, as no one else would have thought of doing it in the manner it was done. The newspaper forms of type were emptied in the ink fountain of the press and on the ink plate partly, and partly in a half-barrel about a third full of ink. The rollers of the press were rolled over the type on the ink plate, and seemingly the type in the half-barrel had been stirred up with the ink. Cases of type, embracing all the body type in the office, lower case and caps, excepting that in the forms, eight cases in all, were dumped, some in the ink some under the press on the floor and one case out in the street, Halliday avenue. The wreck of the newspaper department of the office seems so complete that from the printer's standpoint there appears no way out of it but to buy a new outfit of material. The pied type, due to the way the job was done, is not worth saving for old metal. It is a real blow for Mr. Farnbaker, as there is no insurance against such a disaster.

Local printers who have worked for Mr. Farnbaker, however, say that the latter has always been in the habit of imposing on printers, and never pays one what is due him. If the printer stops to argue, he calls a policeman. If this be true, he has been taught an expensive lesson.

PUNCH AND JUDY.

The Origin of This River Popular Entertainment.

Generations of children have found pleasure in witnessing the antics of Punch and Judy, and the mimic theater in which their adventures are displayed still gives amusement to the young and old. The origin of this always attractive entertainment is not English, as many who have enjoyed it may suppose, but according to an old book, Punch and Judy are of Italian ancestry. In the district of Acozia, near Naples, the people are very much addicted to the making of wine from grapes; and it is curious that from antiquity they have been famous for their love of droll wit and comic fun.

Many years ago in the season of the vintage, which is a time when everybody seems to be full of fun and frolic, some comic players came along through Acozia. They began to perform at the vineyards, and in war of wit the players got the worst of it.

Now, there was among the vineyarders a fellow with an enormous red nose, long and crooked like a pepper horn, and he was the very wildest and wittiest of the whole company. The players were so tickled with his witty sayings, all set off by his odd face and very queer air and manner, that they almost went into hysterics with laughter.

After they went away they began to think that this droll fellow had been a great success to their company; so they went back and made offers to him. These he accepted; and such was the success of his efforts that the company acquired great fame and a great deal of money. Everybody went to see this witty buffoon and all were delighted.

This example led to the establishment of a droll or buffoon in all companies of comedians; and he was always called after the original one, whose name was Puccio d'Aniello. This was, in the course of time, softened into Polesinello, the French made it Polichinelle, and the English Punchinello.

After a time the English, for the sake of brevity, left off the latter part of the word, and called it plain Punch.

How Judy originated, history does not record; but it is very easy to surmise her story. Such a merry fellow as Punch had as good a right to a wife as anybody, if he could get one. Why not? One might think that his best-looked nose would have stood in his way of finding a woman willing to marry him; but his wit was an offset to this. Women are fond of wit, and Punch would have played his part ill if he could not have made it cover his nose.

Now that we have supposed Punch to have had a wife, and also supposed her name to have been Judy, what was more natural than for this amiable couple, now and then, to have a bit of a breeze? They lived a wandering life, and, like other people in their station, took a little liquor to raise their spirits. After the effect was over, feeling a little peevish, they fell to calling each other names, and hand blows followed. So this is their whole history.—Detroit Free Press.

WRITTEN AT RANDOM.

"As the train leaving here at 7:50 o'clock in the morning will carry mail after today the 'Register's' circulation will be increased at Calvert City, Grand Rivers, Kuttawa and Eddyville, and its canvassers will visit those points early this week."

The above, from yesterday's "Register," solves the mystery of why it advocated the mail service between Louisville and Fulton. It raised a great kick when the service was abandoned several months ago, and now, by the above, proves that it was actuated in its boasted "defense of the interests of the merchants" by purely selfish motives, and wanted the service simply so its daily repository of fiction could be distributed up the Illinois Central by Uncle Sam's agents. By the way, the "Register" has a large circulation. As the news "butcher" on the railroads say, the papers circulate up to Central City on one train, and back to Paducah on the other. Great seller, it is!

A new secret order has been added to the already long list. It is called "The Ancient and Exalted Order of the Elephant," and has its foundation in circus and theatrical circles. The initial meeting was held a few days ago at Detroit, Mich., after the progress of a year's careful development. The grand lodge has received a certificate of incorporation from the state of Wisconsin, and charters are to be issued to the "herds," as local orders are to be called. Permanent headquarters have been established at Janesville, Wis., and there are already 400 applications for membership to the parent lodge. The symbol of the order is an elephant, having on its back a trunk, the letters A. E. O. E. being subscribed on the blanket.

This order is something similar to the "Owls," whose symbol is an owl; the "Hoo-Hoos," whose symbol is a black cat; the "Red Men," "Elks," etc. The local divisions of these orders are known as "clubs," "tribes" and by similarly appropriate titles.

"Shooting the chutes" has become very popular in Paducah, especially among the children. In a number of back yards, should one care to investigate, he would find many "shoot-the-chutes" on a small scale, one of the most ingenious of which is that constructed by Master Glenn Smith, the bright little son of Mr. E. W. Smith at Eighth and Madison streets, which is quite a marvel, as well as attraction in the neighborhood.

Many episodes in their everyday life can the little folks compare to shooting the chutes. The other day one little miss was sitting on the edge of the bath tub, when she lost her equilibrium and slid down into the yawning depths of soapuds. She crawled out, spluttering and wiping her eyes, but instead of crying, gleefully exclaimed to her mother, who had rushed to the rescue, "Oh, mama! Did you see me shoot the chutes?"

Attorney Hal Corbett was nominated as a Democratic candidate for congress in the district in which he lived while a resident of Missouri, Mont., a year or two ago. Political speaking, with their concomitant difficulties and dissensions are about the same in the far west as they are in Kentucky, and Attorney Corbett, before he could get to congress had to get elected, hence he always put in his appearance when there was a speaking on hand. On one occasion he made an unusually eloquent speech, concluding with a peroration something like this: "Now, gentlemen, if you want to send me to congress, the honor will be conferred on one who will appreciate and respect it. But gentlemen, I have a beautiful home, a lovely wife and three children to whom I can go. Use your own judgment, I beseech you." And the popular lawyer dwelt at some length on the attractiveness of his domestic life, and the beauty of his home.

After he had concluded, a rough, ignorant old fellow stepped up and said: "Looky hyar, we uns ain't hankerin' after sendin' no man off from such a lovely wife, beautiful home, an' three putty children. Ye've got a darned site more'n eny ev the rest of us, ye're tellin' the truth, an' ef ye'll take a fule's advice ye'll sit rite down in that there beautiful home an' stay with them three putty children yu yours."

The lawyer became indignant and told the old scallawag that he didn't

"What did you do?" inquired a pathetic friend of the attorney when he was telling it the other day.

"What did I do?" echoed the lawyer with a sigh of unmistakable sadness, as he gazed into the heavens above. "Oh, I can see those beautiful stars yet!"

Few people have more loyal, sympathetic hearts than physicians, although a person would be inclined to think otherwise sometimes.

Doctors, as a rule, however, after repeatedly coming in contact with sickness, suffering and sorrow, learn to control their feelings, and although they might appear cold, callous and heartless, they are inwardly as sympathetic and affected as a less experienced person would be.

A rather unusual scene was witnessed a few days ago by quite a number of people on a certain street. A little child lay ill, and every thing possible had been done to save her, but to no avail. Slowly the innocent little life ebbed away, and the potent power of medicine was powerless to prevent it.

The two physicians, after exhausting their last remedy, realized that death was inevitable, and turned their backs to the bed on which lay the little sufferer, surrounded by weeping mother and relatives. The doctors had done the best they could, and passed out of the room, through the hall, to the front porch, and sitting on the front steps both shed tears that could not be restrained, and of which they were not ashamed. The picture was very expressive, and neighbors, when they saw the two physicians sitting on the steps crying, realized that grim death was about to invade another happy home.

It happened at a missionary meeting the other day. They had a new secretary, and it happened that she bore the same name that three or four of the other members did.

When the time for the payment of dues arrived—a time that is quite indispensable in church society circles—the new secretary remarked "Oh Miss B—I see you haven't paid your dues for several weeks?"

"You're mistaken. I have always paid them promptly," retorted Miss B., with ill-concealed resentment.

"Beg your pardon, but I'm going by the book," apologized the new secretary, and several crowded around to find out whether Miss B. had really liquidated her obligations to the society or had gone amiss in this very essential duty.

"Why, it's your own name," triumphantly exclaimed Miss B.'s bosom friend to the amazed and humiliated secretary, and so it proved to be.

The surname of the new secretary and Miss B. was the same.

New Company Treads the Boards at LaBelle To-Night.

Manager Phelps Gets in With New People.—Amusement Notes of Local Interest.

Manager P. A. Phelps and his stock company, nine in number, arrived last night from Nashville on the steamer Butterfield, and are now installed at LaBelle park.

The members of the company are: Misses Bertha Phelps, Eberline Hogan and Ella Reed, Messrs. John Delaney, King Russell, W. C. Malone, J. B. Clark, Verner Phelps and Manager P. A. Phelps. Mrs. Clark accompanied her husband, but is not in the troupe.

The company opens tonight at LaBelle park in John A. Stevens' celebrated "Unknown," a play that has never yet been produced in Paducah by any company, and is first-class and a sure winner.

Manager Phelps stated last night that he would present no play that has ever been seen in Paducah, during his engagement here. His repertory includes plays that have never been produced even in Kentucky, and the company will no doubt make a great success here.

Manager Phelps will play his people wherever, in his opinion, they can do best. He and Miss Hogan will appear in the leads, but the others will have no particular place in the cast. The bill for the latter part of the week will be announced later.

The vitascope, at LaBelle Park Theater, drew two large crowds yesterday, both afternoon and night. The crowd last night was particularly large, which was quite a pleasant surprise to the management, considering the fact that it was Sunday night.

The Agnes Carlton-Phillips Company left at noon yesterday for Murphysboro, Ill., where it tonight begins a week's engagement. Mr. Mosley, formerly of Mabel Paige, is in advance.

The Casino Stock Company opened at Dawson Saturday night in a double bill, and while the patronage was not extraordinary, the company made quite a hit, especially Mrs. Bourne and Little Hazel. The troupe will present tonight "Rough Diamond," Tuesday, "Lady Audley's" and Wednesday "East Lynne."

PIED THE TYPE

And Poured the Whole Print-Shop Into the Ink Barrel.

High-Handed Vandalism at Calvert, Ill.—Printers Are Suspected, as One Had Made Threats.

Friday at Cairo several miscreants practically destroyed the printing office of Sol Farnbacher, who is proprietor of the Evening "People" office. Several strange types who had been working in the office are suspected of the vandalism. The fact that they have not been seen since the mischief was done strengthens the theory.

They had some differences with Mr. Farnbacher over wages they claimed due them, and one of them had been heard to make threats that he would get even with the office if he was not paid satisfactorily.

This job was done by printers, as no one else would have thought of doing it in the manner it was done. The newspaper forms of type were emptied in the ink fountain of the press and on the ink plate partly, and partly in a half-barrel about a third full of ink. The rollers of the press were rolled over the type on the ink plate, and seemingly the type in the half-barrel had been stirred up with the ink. Cases of type, embracing all the body type in the office, lower case and caps, excepting that in the forms, eight cases in all, were dumped, some in the ink, some under the press on the floor and one case out in the street. Hallway avenue. The wreck of the newspaper department of the office seems so complete that from the printer's standpoint there appears no way out of it but to buy a new outfit of material. The pied type, due to the way the job was done, is not worth boxing up for old metal. It is a hard blow for Mr. Farnbacher, as there is no insurance against such a disaster.

Local printers who have worked for Mr. Farnbacher, however, say that the latter has always been in the habit of imposing on printers, and never pays one what is due him. If the printer stops to argue, he calls a policeman. If this be true, he has been taught an expensive lesson.

PUNCH AND JUDY.

The Origin of This River Popular Entertainment.

Generations of children have found pleasure in witnessing the antics of Punch and Judy and the mimic theater in which their adventures are displayed still gives amusement to both young and old. The origin of this always attractive entertainment is not English, as many who have enjoyed it may suppose, but according to some local, Punch and Judy are of Italian ancestry. In the district of Acozza, near Naples, the people are very much addicted to the making of wine from grapes; and it is curious that from antiquity they have been famous for their love of droll and mimicry.

Many years ago in the season of the vintage, which is a time when every body seems to be full of fun and frolic, some comic players came along through Acozza. They began to poke fun at the villagers, and in war of wit the players got the worst of it.

Now, there was among the villagers a fellow with an enormous red nose, long and crooked like a powder horn; and he was the very drollest and wildest of the whole company. The players were so tickled with his witty sayings, all set off by his odd face and very queer and manner, that they almost went into hysterics with laughter.

After they went away they began to think that this droll fellow would be a great success to their company; so they went back and made offers to him. These he accepted; and such was the success of his efforts that the company acquired great fame and a great deal of money. Everybody went to see this witty buffoon and all were delighted.

This example led to the establishment of a droll or buffoon in all companies of comedians; and he was always called after the original one, whose name was Punch; and the fellow who was the first to play the part of the droll, and who was called Judy.
